Peace Sunday This Weekend

"We live in a world in need of peace."

Over 240,000 people were killed in conflict-related violence in 2025. Ahead of Peace Sunday this weekend and the United Nations forthcoming International Day of Peace, Rachel Lampard, Director of Social Justice and Social Action for the Methodist Church, reflects on how we can all become peacemakers.

If you are interested in joining a group to explore how best to support peacebuilding as part of ordinary Christian discipleship, contact Rachel Lampard: LampardR@methodistchurch.org.uk

Reparative Justice

Your views matter. From Monday you will have the chance for your comments to feed into the action the Church takes on Reparative Justice, as a new consultation process is launched.

Throughout autumn, there will be opportunities to take part in online discussions, in-person events and surveys. Feedback will help inform recommendations and actions put to the Methodist Conference in 2027.

Net Zero Investment

A modern Methodist Church that has undergone transformation to become more energy-efficient is now seeing the returns in lower electricity and gas costs. For the congregation of Silsden Methodist Church, installing solar panels and heat pumps is both environmentally friendly and has been a sound financial investment.

What Does Your Church Actually Run On?

Some churches pay for a church management platform; others use a spreadsheet and a good memory, or perhaps an ancient piece of software – but no one knows who pays for it.

This anonymous survey seeks to measure the level of use of church management platforms across the Connexion. It takes five minutes to complete and findings form part of a paper for the Digital Transformation Programme.

Listen Again

Pause for Thought – Revd Dr Inderjit Bhogal

“Greatness lies in welcoming those who are most excluded or vulnerable.”

In 'Watchful and Protective Care' the Revd Dr Inderjit Bhogal considers this week's theme 'All Are Welcome' and reflects on how, as a child, the warm welcome he received from the Church changed his life.
